Survey collection closes May 31, 2024

Link Involvement to Achievement

Studies show that schools — where parents are involved in their child's education and in the decision-making process — experience higher levels of student achievement and greater public support.

Address Participation and Representativeness

Georgia offers all eligible families the opportunity to participate in the survey; surveys are not distributed to select families

Tips to increase overall participation:

- Share the results during the open survey period (real-time) and the final results of the survey with district and school leaders and teachers, enlisting their support
- Publicize the survey – newsletters, emails, website, flyer with QR code
- Provide technology at IEP Team meetings, conferences, events

Analyze real time data throughout the survey period to address representativeness

Creating Buy-In

- Ensure relevant participation among district and school leaders
- Share the importance of the survey and how the results will be used to guide family engagement practices for the upcoming school year.
- Gain feedback from leaders on ways to promote/encourage parent participation
