Fire & Emergency/Public Safety Communications
Law, Public Safety, Corrections and Security workers plan, manage and provide legal, public safety, protection services and homeland security including professional and technical support services. Occupations are numerous and represent multiple levels of education and skills. Occupations fall into major categories based on common knowledge and skills: correction services such as correctional officers and jailers; emergency and fire management services such as fire fighters, EMTs, paramedics, and public safety communications; security and protective services such as information security IT specialists; law enforcement such as criminal investigators, police officers, special agents; and legal services such as a court reporters or lawyers. Police, fire, and ambulance dispatchers work in an emergency communication center. Most police, fire, and ambulance dispatchers have a high school diploma or GED. Additional requirements may vary. Many states require dispatchers to become certified. Employment of police, fire, and ambulance dispatchers is expected to grow by 12 percent from 2010 to 2020, about as fast as average for all occupations. A larger and older population is likely to mean more emergency calls and, therefore, a need for more dispatchers.
