Transcript of 2018 FEC Launch Video

Mark your calendar today for February 2nd and 3rd, 2018! A new conference experience is headed your way. No keynote speakers and no vendor exhibits, but shared expertise from Georgia practitioners. We are even going paperless, so be sure to download the conference app once it's available. Let it guide your Unconference experience.

For 2018, the conference will have a different format. In past years, session presenters and keynote speakers from across the country shared their specialized knowledge of Family Engagement best practices. While that's informative, the format limited participant interaction. That's why we are transitioning to the UNconference format utilizing a hybrid EdCamp and ParentCamp model and student enrichment activities.

During EdCamp and ParentCamp, we will be surrounded by the Family Engagement experts from across the state of Georgia. YOU are the experts who come with a variety of backgrounds and perspectives and you are developing and utilizing best practices to face challenges unique to Georgia. Have you overcome a challenge in a new, creative way? Share your innovative practice with others. Do you have challenges facing a particular topic? Find out what others are doing to address the same challenge. choose.

At the UNconference, you'll have choices throughout the day to attend a traditional workshop session with experienced presenters OR participate in the EdCamp and ParentCamp model, OR even change from one format to the other if you so choose. Join us and help shape the conversation at the Family Engagement UNconference this February. To learn more about the EdCamp model, go to <http://bit.ly/2018gafec>. See you in Macon, Georgia!
