➢ How do the practices summarized in this brief reflect the common actions of principals in your district? How are principals prepared or supported in this work?

Research on the Role of the Principal in Mentoring and Induction

➢ Principal actions and effectiveness are a major factor in teacher retention and student achievement (Louis, Leithwood, Wahlstrom, & Anderson, 2010; Burkhauser, Gates, Hamilton, & Ikemoto, 2012).

➢ Principals play a major role in school culture and working conditions (Angelle, 2006; Johnson, 2006).

➢ Principals can take specific actions to ensure that the school culture and working conditions support and facilitate effective induction and mentoring systems (Brock & Grady, 2001; Carver, 2000; Darling-Hammond, Berry, & Fideler, 1999).

IHE Ed Leadership: Dr. Mike Bochenko

Valdosta State University mjbochenko@valdosta.edu
As a result of changes to the GaPSC Rule 505-2-.153 regarding educational leadership and Rule 505-3-.77 governing educational leadership programs, VSU “reconstituted” the Educational Leadership Master’s Degree and non-degree programs of study.

Both are comprehensive programs of study including course work and related field experiences leading to the Tier I Educational Leadership field.

Aside from the coursework, the primary goal of the field experience is to link the theoretical and philosophical frameworks of educational leadership to actual practice.
The field experiences are designed to:

1. Provide an opportunity for practical involvement in school leadership;
2. Allow for the linkage of theory and practice;
3. Integrate problem resolution, decision-making, and other selected aspects of leadership;
4. Experiment with new ideas, approaches, and strategies in a supportive environment; and,
5. Aid in the assessment of one’s professional strengths and the need for further development.
Why include teacher induction in the field experience?
1. The school leader should establish a climate & culture to support teachers new to the profession;

2. The administrator has a major role in assigning instructional responsibilities which can either positively or negatively impact upon the new teacher’s experience.

3. Although the building leader may provide some guidance, this primary responsibility falls upon the selection of a competent faculty member to serve as mentor and who has successfully completed, or continues to undertake, a quality mentor training program.
Review your system’s new teacher induction program. Evaluate the induction plan answering the questions:

1. How well does the plan increase instructional capacity;

2. How does it improve the new teacher’s ability to teach; and,

3. How does it improve the teacher’s ability to work in a collaborative and productive manner with other teachers.
Compare what exists in relation to the Induction Guidance provided by the GaDOE. Provide recommendations for assuring teachers new to the school are familiar with the Georgia Standards of Excellence, the system curriculum and instructional programs, instructional supervision program, and general school operating procedures.
In support of what they have done, the candidate must provide:

1. A written summary of your evaluation of the induction plan highlighting how it compares and/or contrasts with the Teacher Induction Guidance document provided by GaDOE;
2. Written recommendations for improving the induction process; and,
3. A learning reflection
