

Tricks of the Trade: Tips for Providing Instructional Feedback in Remote Learning Settings Webinar

Questions and Answers

What is the TAPS survey for instructional needs?

Answer: TAPS Survey for Instructional Needs refer to the TAPS Self-Assessment and the TAPS checklist located in each fact sheet. Surveys should be used for the purpose of professional learning to identify strengths and needs.

To make sure I understand, are leaders still required to complete the number of observations required per plan?

Answer: The TLSL platform is currently open for use. We are waiting for guidance from Superintendent Woods on how the process will look during the 2020-2021 school year.

I saw a reference to a Remote Learning Confidence Survey. Where can we find that?

Answer: The Division of Teacher Leader Support and Development is not recommending one type of Remote Learning Confidence survey. Each district has the flexibility to develop tailored surveys to meet the needs of their educators. Below are some resources that may be helpful in designing and implementing surveys.

- Remote Learning: 6 Questions You Should Be Asking Your Students and Instructors Now
- PBS Teachers Lounge

Is there a crosswalk of TKES standards with online teaching standards that you will publish?

Answer: The Division of Teacher Leader Support and Development is currently working on crosswalks with indicators which will be released soon.